

Am Fasgadh Meeting facilities

The new Am Fasgadh building, which was completed in 2013 houses the main collection of the Highland Folk Museum and along with offices has impressive, well equipped facilities for holding meetings, conferences and courses. A private car park is situated alongside the building.

The facility has meeting rooms on both ground floor and 1st floor with adjoining breakout areas and toilet facilities. Both rooms have wall mounted white and pin boards and both can be set up in a variety of configuration for meetings, training courses, events, conferences etc. The Grant Room also boasts a 55inch wall mounted television with connecting equipment for presentations.

The whole building has been designed with disabled access in mind and has wide doors, a lift between the ground and upper floor and disabled access toilets on both floors.
