RECORDS' CONTEXT

Names of creators: Nigel Banks Mackenzie, his family and others

Administrative history: Nigel Banks Mackenzie (1836-1924), was born on St Kilda, the son of Nigel or Niel MacKenzie, Church of Scotland minister on the island, and his wife Elizabeth Mackenzie, nee Crawford. He was educated at Edinburgh Academy and Edinburgh University, after which he became a solicitor and Writer to the Signet. He joined the British Linen Bank and was appointed manager of its Fort William branch in 1868, aged 32. He also ran a legal practice and land agency, and became factor for several Scottish estates, including Lochiel, Ardgour, Glenfintaig, Glenuig and Kingairloch, as well as a British Linen director. He was extremely active in promoting railways, in particular the West Highland Railway to Fort William and its later extension to Mallaig, served as Provost of Fort William for several term, and also as Chairman of the Inverness County Council.

In 1872 he married Lilias Scott MacKenzie (1851/2-1914) and the couple had 11 children, including Nigel Banks MacKenzie Jr, Donald MacPherson MacKenzie, Margaret Elizabeth MacKenzie, who married John Frederick Rogers in 1916, Mary Helen MacKenzie, who married Henry Cecil Knox Dick, Agnes Cecelia Jane Mackenzie, who married James Hamilton-Gunn and moved to Canada, Margaret Elizabeth MacKenzie, Lilias Kathleen MacKenzie, Edith Mabel MacKenzie, who was confined in the Royal Asylum in Montrose, Frank MacKenzie and Charles Edward Stuart MacKenzie.

He lived on Cameron Square in Fort William, and kept another residence, Camus House or Camusmore in Onich for summer use. He had also a house in Edinburgh, and boat houses at Fort William and Onich, as he was a keen sailor.

Custodial history:

Kept at the West Highland Museum, Fort William before being deposited by the Museum with Lochaber Archive Centre on 14 July 2014.

RECORDS' CONTEXT

Names of creators: Light Company, 100th (Gordon Highlanders) Regiment of Foot

Administrative history: The 100th (Gordon Highlanders) Regiment of Foot was granted Royal Warrant on 10 February 1794, and first paraded on 24 June 1794, the date that this Orderly Book commences. The first five years of the regiment's service were spent on garrison duties at Gibraltar, Corsica and Elba, and they fought in the Irish Rebellion of 1798. In around 1799, they renumbered as the 92nd (Gordon Highlanders) Regiment of Foot, and went on to serve in Holland, Egypt, Denmark, Portugal, Spain, France (including at Waterloo), Jamaica, the Crimean War, the Indian Mutiny, Afghanistan and in the First Anglo-Boer War in South Africa. In 1881, they were amalgamated with the 75th Regiment of Foot to form the Gordon Highlanders.

RECORDS' CONTEXT

Names of creators: Ewen Macpherson of Cluny, Donald Cameron of Lochiel, Charles O'Brien, styled 6th Viscount Clare and 9th Earl of Thomond
Bishop Robert Forbes, Colonel Humphrey Bland.

Administrative history: Ewen Macpherson of Cluny (1706–1764) was 12th Chief of Clan Macpherson and a Jacobite army officer during the 1745 rising; after living in hiding for 9 years, he went to France where he died.

Donald Cameron of Lochiel (c1700-1748) was 19th Chief of Clan Cameron and a Jacobite leader during the 1745 rising; escaped to France after the failure of the rising, where he died.

Charles O'Brien styled 6th Viscount Clare and 9th Earl of Thomond (1699–1761), was the son of an Irish Jacobite exile and an officer in the French army.

Robert Forbes (bap. 1708, d. 1775), was a Jacobite annalist and Scottish Episcopal bishop of Ross and Caithness and also compiler of The Lyon in Mourning.

Colonel Humphrey Bland (1685/6–1763), was a British army officer in Scotland during the 1745–6 rising, commanding the cavalry and leading the pursuit immediately after Culloden, and was at the army's Fort Augustus encampment formed that summer. When Cumberland departed Scotland in July 1746, Bland was left in command of one of the four military districts into which that country was then divided, running southwards from Stirling and including Edinburgh.

Custodial history: Kept in the West Highland Museum, Fort William before being deposited with Lochaber Archive Centre on 25 August 2014.
