RECORDS' CONTEXT

Name of creators: North Country Cheviot Sheep Society;
Royal Highland & Agricultural Society

Administrative history: North Country Cheviot Sheep Society
In 1912 breeders in Caithness and Sutherland formed the North Country Cheviot Breeders Association for the purpose of holding shows and sales.
After the Second World War, in 1945, this association was reformed into the existing North Country Cheviot Sheep Society.
The Society was set up to promote the interests of the widely dispersed breed. Ram registration was introduced and an annual Flock Book, giving details of all pure bred flocks, published.
At present there are around 550 members of the Society in the British Isles, spread throughout the whole of the country from Caithness in the North of Scotland to Cornwall in the South of England & including many flock in Wales, Northern Ireland & Ireland.
The popularity of the breed continues to grow – a testament to it's proven track record of producing what the market demands – quality and value without compromise.

The 'Northie' is the complete all rounder, a native breed which thrives in all parts of the UK, and one which truly has withstood the test of time.

Royal Highland & Agricultural Society

Since 1784, the Royal Highland and Agricultural Society of Scotland (RHASS) has been the respected standard-bearer for farming and rural industry in Scotland. The Society was founded in 1784 to promote the regeneration of rural Scotland, as well as the preservation of its poetry, language and music. Today, in the 21st century, the Society is for people who value the rural areas of Scotland. It is for everyone who supports the very best standards in agriculture, forestry and stewardship of the countryside, which are such an essential part of our heritage - and our future.
