RECORDS' CONTEXT

Name of creators:	Wick Players
-------------------	--------------

Administrative history:	In 1932, an enthusiastic group of amateur thespians came together under the direction of County Librarian Kennedy Stewart to perform their first show in the Breadalbane Hall. 'The Players' became a formal organisation in 1933. In the 1950s The Players joined the SCDA (Scottish Community Drama Association) to compete with other amateur dramatics groups around Scotland. Wick Pantomime Society was formed in the early 1950s, drawing members from The Players, the church and the community, but after some deliberation the Pantomime Society was amalgamated with The Players to form the new Wick Players. The 1950s saw community drama at its peak, and membership in Wick Players increased significantly. By the early 1960s the effects of television was felt and enthusiasm waned, but younger members started to take on more responsibility and membership was slowly rebuilt. Throughout the 1970s the Players alternated a play and a pantomime each year, with costumes, scenery and lighting increasingly sophisticated. In 1980 the Players performed the Iain
-------------------------	--

Sutherland play 'By the Cran', a play portraying the rise and fall of the fishing industry in Wick. It was an outstanding success.

In 1998, Wick Players won both the Scottish and British Finals of One Act Plays with their production of 'Lone Star', directed by Donald Farmer.

In 2001 they repeated their success, winning both finals again with 'A Bench at the Edge'.

Wick Players celebrated their 90th anniversary in 2023.
