The Highlands

The Highlands of Scotland is a part of the world renowned for its beauty, hospitality and lifestyle. Comprising a third of the Scottish landmass and including 14 inhabited islands, it is an area of outstanding beauty and natural heritage, epitomised by the Cairngorms National Park and the world famous North Coast 500 tourist route.

Inverness is the administrative and transport hub of the region - a city with over 63,000 inhabitants and a flourishing University of the Highlands and Islands. It is a fast growing and ambitious centre with national and international air links.

Whilst the geography of the Highland area is characterised by distance, the lifestyle is characterised by community and connection. There is something different about life in the north of Scotland. Whether it's down to the diversity of the geography, an area rich in outdoor opportunities and culture or the friendly welcome, the Highlands offer one of the most distinctive lifestyle choices available anywhere in the UK.
